Elk Point welcomes third doctor

It's been a long process for Elk Point to finally obtain a third doctor, and now that Dr. Adenike Ashaolu has been joined by her family, the whole community was invited to welcome them to their new home town.

Dr. Ashaolu arrived from Winnipeg on May 15, with daughters Jemima and Joy and son Joshua joining her July 1 and her husband Daniel arriving Friday evening, just in time for the welcome celebration and barbecue at the EcoCentre.

The doctor says she has been very busy since she arrived and declares the healthcare centre staff "excellent to work with."

Mayor Lorne Young welcomed the Ashaouls on behalf of the town and said, "We are very appreciative that you came here."

Irvine named Logan Boulet Humanitarian of the Year

VICKI BROOKER
Review Staff

The importance of organ donation reached a new audience this weekend, as a very special award was presented to Morris Irvine, who with his family and close friends, founded the 2nd Chance Trail Ride for Organ Transplant Awareness back in 2012.

Irvine was presented with the Logan Boulet Humanitarian of the Year Award from the Angel's Legacy Program at Century Downs Racetrack and Casino in Balzac, Alberta just before the final day of racing in the World Professional Chuckwagon Association's World Championship finals hit the track, with Irvine's son Doug in the sixth heat.

Irvine knows first hand the value of organ transplants, having received a pair of lungs in March 2011. Before the transplant, he said, "I couldn't breathe. My life was saved by a stranger." In appreciation for his new lease on life, Irvine and fellow transplant recipient Tom Matthews came up with the idea of a trail ride to raise both awareness of the need for transplant organs and funds to help those who are lucky enough to reach the top of the transplant list.

That first small trail ride was a modest success, with those that followed growing each year in both attendance and money raised. This year, 345 riders took part in the ride, with many more on hand for the banquet and live and silent auctions. Logan Boulet's parents,

Toby and Bernadette, were special guest speakers at the banquet, and were honored with a standing ovation from the capacity crowd after their inspiring message.

The annual event is a huge undertaking, but Irvine said he isn't doing it alone. "It's my whole family and my friends," he said. "They've all been there to help. I couldn't do it myself, so I've got to thank them and I have to thank my donor every day, thank my donor for me being able to do this."

Dr. Darren Freed of the Mazankowski Alberta Heart Institute was presented with the Innovation Award for Organ Transplant Technology at the same ceremony.

Last year, the Angel's Legacy Humanitarian Award was presented posthumously to Logan Boulet, the Humboldt Broncos bus crash victim who had signed an organ donor card and whose organs saved or improved many lives. In the wake of his life changing donations, nearly 95,000 Canadians signed their organ donor cards, due to the inspiration he gave to others.

Both what is now called 'the Boulet Effect' and the award recipients were recognized by Alberta Premier Jason Kenney, who said the humanitarian award that now bears Boulet's name "is a meaningful way to honour his memory and celebrate those who continue to advocate for organ donations. Morris Irvine knows first hand how important that work is, and I commend him for all he has done to raise awareness about donation and support transplant families."

Local ropers headed for LRA Showdown

VICKI BROOKER
Staff Writer

Three local ropers are tying up another successful season at the Lakeland Rodeo Association's 2019 Showdown Finals this weekend, with Elk Point's Austin Young competing in both team roping and tie down roping, and Cory Dunlop of St. Paul and Wyatt Smith of St. Lina in the team roping lineup.

Both Young and Dunlop are team roping heelers, with Young finishing the season in third spot and Dunlop in fourth, and both have a long history with the LRA.

Dunlop stating his rodeo career by roping dummies on the ground at age five and moving up to roping from a horse two or three years later. Young started team roping with his dad Charlie at age 10. Young's mother Wendy is a multiple-time LRA finalist in both junior and ladies' barrel racing and both she and his grandfather, the late Larry Lorensen, the LRA's high point calf roper in 1980, were original LRA members when the association was formed in 1979. Dunlop, who is the current LRA president and its 2018 Cowboy of the Year recipient, is a second-generation member of the association.

The 2019 rodeos brought continued success for all three, who also competed in last year's Showdown. Young came into the 2018 tie down roping finals in fifth spot, and team roping, with Smith, in 10th spot, one place behind Dunlop and Kevin Chipeur.

This year, Young had just one first-place finish, at Gooseberry, where he roped with Wyatt Smith, and placed third at Smoky Lake, roping with Travis Reay, and third at Hardisty with Koby Zimmer, with that pair also splitting third and fourth at Stoney Lake and fifth and sixth at Hairy Hill, while he and Smith earned another third-fourth split at Cloverlodge, those wins adding up to $5,576.57 for Young over the season.

Young added up a pair of firsts, at Cloverlodge and Boyle, a second at Stoney Lake, a three-four split at Tofield and a seventh at Kikino to come into the tie-down roping finals in seventh spot. He also had a pair of third place finishes in steer wrestling, at Killam and Gooseberry, and a sixth at Hairy Hill.

Young, who is heading back from college in new Mexico, said the temperature there on Monday morning was 103 F. and he's "excited to get back where it's cooler." He says he's had a good year, all the horses worked good and I'm hoping for more of the same in the finals." He will be roping with Wyatt Smith again this year.

Dunlop and header Kale Pederson of Buck Lake teamed up to place first in both St. Albert and Hinton, second in Boyle, third in Cadogan, and ended up tied for third and fourth at Stoney Lake and for fifth and sixth in Wetaskiwin, Dunlop taking home a total of $5,554.36 in prize money over the season, just $22.21 behind Young.

Smith, the only header of the trio, comes into the finals in 10th place with earnings of $3,586.56.

County of St. Paul Reeve Steve Upham echoed the sentiment, saying the county council is "pleased that you chose Elk Point."

Coun. Terri Hampson, who also is president of the Elk Point and District

Chamber of Commerce, presented the family with a certificate welcoming them to the community.

The early evening event gave local residents an opportunity to meet and greet the newcomers with Joy, who is going into Grade 4, Jemima, Grade 6, and Joshua, Grade 10, meeting new friends. before they start the new school year.

FAE AND MORRIS IRVVINE were joined by grandson Tyler Ockerman and fellow organ recipient Tom Matthews for the presentation at Century Downs on Sunday.

Humanitarian

Dr. Freed's work to advance organ transplants with technology "will have a positive impact on the lives of many heart-lung patients," the premier said.

The Angel's Legacy award came from the Dawne Switenky Memorial Foundation, created in 2014 in memory of a Saskatchewan woman who strongly believed in organ donation, but when she herself needed a transplant organ, did not survive long enough to reach the top of the list. Her husband Terry said his wife's 12-year illness "was quite an education," and as a result, he feels there is a misunderstanding among the general public about organ donation, who may think donors "only step up when needed. We wanted organ donors to come out into the open; if their families know their wishes, they are likely to respect it." To help that communication come about, and in Dawne Switenky's memory, many Angel's Legacy Donor Cards have been signed by individuals who wish to donate their organs, and provide clear and concise last wishes to their families that this intention is to be followed

The memorial foundation is taking their campaign to sports venues and events, including the WPCA finals, where they sponsored Luke Tournier's chuck-wagon, and to the agricultural industry in hopes of finding more registered donors. Just 6.4 million of 34 million eligible Canadians have signed their donor cards, and Terry Switenky says this number needs to increase substantially.

"It's not a hard decision, but you have to make it."

Family fun at Ferguson Flats block party and movie

The County of St. Paul and Elk Point FCSS hosted a block party and movie night at Ferguson Flats on Thursday with families enjoying hot dogs, games and playground fun on a sunny evening.

The FCSS summer staff set up the big inflatable screen as the sun went down, but when movie time arrived, an unforeseen technical problem had Bradley Dubrule explaining that Cars 3 was not available and viewers voted for Despicable Me as their second choice. Free popcorn was enjoyed by all the moviegoers.

EDITORIAL

Another summer in the books

Where did the summer go? That's the question we're all asking ourselves these days, as the final week of August speeds by on its way to the final long weekend of the summer and jumps head first into September.

The weather hasn't always been the best throughout the holiday months, and it's been difficult to find a weekend with great weather to go camping, fishing or sightseeing. It's varied from too wet to too dry for gardening, and finding a long enough dry spell to cut the lawn, or in the case of the farmers, the hay crop, has been a challenge. Both field and vegetable crops that started out with the ground too dry to germinate had to deal with downpours and drowned out areas, before the sun came back out again and everything could finally get busy and grow.

Now it's getting on to harvest time, with many fields already silaged, and grain and canola crops starting to turn color. Gardens are producing at a pace that has farm wives wondering what to do first and when to get everything done.

On top of all that, it's time to get the youngsters ready for school, with backpacks filled with all the 101 items on their back to school list, and a few new clothes to replace those grown out of since the last school year ended.

But first, it's the Labour Day weekend, time to take in the Lakeland Rodeo Association Showdown finals, time to take a final trip to the lake, or find time to visit with family and friends.

Have a great Labour Day weekend, everyone!

Kehewin centennial, hole in one, Roman riding and a proposal

HERE'S THE NEWS THAT MADE THE HEADLINES OF THE LAKELAND REVIEW AND ELK POINT REVIEW FOR THE WEEK OF AUG. 27 IN...

1984

Old met new at Kehewin Indian Reserve as the residents celebrated their centennial with a four-day gathering that saw 30 teepees circled around a big canvas shelter that was the site of drumming, hand games, dancing and storytelling, with the weekend also including a baseball tournament, all-Indian rodeo, chariot and chuckwagon races.

1989

Elk Point Oilmen's Association hosted their sixth annual Oilmen's Golf Tournament, with Ken McCaw first, Ed Soldan second, Terry Rae third and Ken Garwasiuk fourth in the championship flight. Town council held a special meeting to discuss potential uses of the capital and operating grant approved under the Municipal Recreation and Tourism Areas Grant.

1994

Art Britton topped 112 golfers to win his second Elk Point Oilmen's Golf Tournament Grand Challenge in three years. Lindbergh outrider Doug Irvine was a busy man at the Northern Professional Chuskwagon Association championships, riding for year-end champion Brian Laboucane, who edged out Buddy Bensmiller by just 9.5 points for the season.

1999

It took 15 years, but the Elk Point Oilmen's Association finally gave one of its coveted Hole in One awards to Tom Parenteau, who went on to win the Championship Flight of the tournament.

2004

Robyn Moroziuk won a tiebreaker over Sean Hill in the championship round of the 21st annual Elk Point Oilmen's Golf Tournament, with 17 flights of golfers taking part. There were showers and surprises at the Midwest Rodeo Association Finals, where Bob Cook followed a Roman riding demonstration by dropping on one knee in the infield and proposing to a very surprised Ann Maxwell.

2009

Heinsburg Community Club prepared to celebrate half a century as a registered society in their hall, which grew in seven stages from a small and modest structure to a spacious facility that had just added a larger deck and garden doors to its seniors' area.

2014

After much thought and consideration, Westlock-St. Paul MP Brian Storseth says he has decided not to run in the upcoming federal election in 2015.

FIRED UP AT THE FORTS - Fort George and Buckingham House historic site's head interpreter Blake Desjarlais applauds program director Ross Stromberg's success at starting a fire with the age-old bow drill method during Rendezvous 222, which also featured fire starting with a magnifying glass and with flint and steel, all three methods used in the days of the fur trade.

Fort George and Buckingham House holds a Teddy Bear's Picnic

Thursday's weather wasn't the greatest, but visitors from the Ashmont Momm and Tots group were still eager to follow Fort George and Buckingham House lead interpreter Wyatt Telford and his friend Mr. Bear down the trail for stories, games and snacks at the picnic site near Fort George.

The morning started off with a craft session, where participants colored and cut out various forest animals and glued them to paper bags to make puppets. This was the second Teddy Bear's Picnic at the Forts this year, since bookings were taken for the personalized events suitable for families, groups or birthday parties rather than one big public event per year.

4-H Regional Horse Camp

SUBMITTED COPY

The Northeast 4-H Regional Horse Camp took place at the Stoney Lake Stampede Grounds from Aug. 17 to 19.

"We had 32 enthusiastic members in attendance participating in Trail, Jumping, cattle work, English and Western Equitation, roping, gymkhana and leather making in their learning sessions and line dancing, capture the flag and a bonfire in the evenings, which on Sunday included an awesome meal by PS Catering," Janice Wirsta reports.

The weekend would not have been possible without all of the participants and instructors... as well as parents, family members and other volunteers who helped during teaching sessions as well as with set up and take down, she added.
